DIGITAL PHOTO ACADEMY OFFERS TIPS FROM PROS

THE DIGITAL PHOTO ACADEMY gives monthly workshops for photographers of all levels. Classes are taught by pros like Milton Heiberg. Covering the spectrum from learning basic techniques to developing professional-level skills, the classes are small so that students can be grouped according to their skill level—beginner, intermediate, or advanced. The full day advanced seminar consists of a three- to four-hour photo shoot, followed by four hours in the classroom.

With the camera around his wrist and down at his side, Heiberg took this portrait of a Bedouin goat-herdsman at Mt. Meron in Galilee, Israel. His advice to all photographers is to "love your subject more than your camera." He says the best pictures happen when you're at ease with your subject matter.

Milton Heiberg, a 30-year photography veteran who teaches a variety of styles including studio, nature and Photoshop techniques. Heiberg has written seven photography books and works from his Orlando, Florida, studio.
